Little Bit and an Arena That Falls to Connect-Other Sporting News.

London, April 1 .- A letter from a well known member of the Royal Yacht squadron who is visiting Athens has been received here. The writer says he is not going to walt for the Olympic games, adding:

"Really, I never saw such a farce. On Sunday the athletes were practicing and the king and his court were looking on. They could not do anything, yet about 3,000 spectators were witnessing and applauding a man who could only jump five feet two inches high, The arena is not nearly finished and I do not think it ever will be finished."

Allsa Leads All the Way, Nice, April L.-In the special race to-day over the thirty mile course, the first prize being fifty pounds and a Sev-res cup offered by the minister of fine arts, the second prize being 20 pounds aris, the second prize being to polaris and a cup, Allsa led throughout and won. Britannia was second and Sata-nita was third. There was a light breeze and the sea was smoothe.

Schnefer-Ives Billiard Match.

New York, April 1.-Madison Square eager to see Frank Ives and James Schafer cross cues for the first time at the 18-nich balk line game. Ives won the break and chose the white ball. The first good work of the evening was accomplished in the fifth inning. Ives failed to score, but Schaefer played very pretty billiars and forged ahead rapidly. When he had made fifty by good round play he was roundly applauded, and the applause was renewed when the score called 77. Schaefer's best run on Monday night was 76, and he had thus beaten his previous highest run. His ninety-seventh shot, a difficult masse, was beautifully executed and the audience cheered roundly. There was another outburst of applause when Jake passed the century mark. He kept on until he had 115 buttons, and after failing on a long two-cush-ion shot, he gave way to Ives, who was just 110 points behind, the score standing: Schaefer 153: Ives 43. Ives' face bore a determined expression when he began his sixth loning, and by a sucession of draws and gathering shots, he soon put up fifty and continued until his seventy-fourth shot, a difficult attempt to bank off two cushions for a carom. His cue ball passed between the red and white, missing both by the narrowest of margins. Schaefer's sixth brought out some of the prettiest Schaefer's work that he ever accomplished, and although he only made sixty-six, inning was more replete with brilliant plays than the preceding ones. In the tenth inning Ives scored sev-enty points and Schaefer failed again to score. The champion struck a fast gult in the eleventh inning and very quickly ran up 119. In the eighteenth Ives again got his nerve and ran out the game with an unfinished break of 103, amid a great deal of excitement and cheering at the end of the last play
